Biographical/Historical note

This collection is made up four separate agencies' records:

National Catholic Welfare Conference, Bureau/Department of Immigration (later the United States Catholic Conference, Migration and Refugee Services)

The United States Catholic Conference (USCC) Department of Immigration is the successor organization of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. The National Catholic Welfare Conference (NCWC) Department of Immigration was a bureau/department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, established in December 1920 directly under the Executive Department of the the NCWC. The NCWC was founded in 1919 by the bishops of the United States, as an outgrowth of the National Catholic War Council, which coordinated welfare activities of of the United States Catholic Church during World War I. Their aim was to unify, coordinate, and organize Catholic activities in the areas of education, social welfare, immigrant aid, citizenship, family life, and other activities. In 1921, the NCWC Bureau of Immigration created a New York Port office (located at 61 Whitehall Street), in addition to its Washington DC office, with Thomas Mulholland as Port Director.

Many agencies were formed by the NCWC in response to Nazi Germany and later World War II. It formed the International Catholic Office for Refugee Affairs in 1939, the Catholic Committee for Refugees in 1936, and the War Relief Services (later the Catholic Relief Services) in 1943, in addition to other agencies. The end of World War II did not mean the end of the new agencies. Refugee situations persisted long after the war, and the U.S. hierarchy was aware that the agencies could be used to meet new emergencies as they arose. Recognizing the continuing importance of immigration, the NCWC elevated the Bureau of Immigration to the Department of Immigration in 1953. In 1965, the NCWC reorganized the above agencies, folding both the Catholic Committee for Refugees and the Catholic Relief Services into the Department of Immigration. Coincidentally, New York City condemned the building the Port Office occupied, and so that office joined the Catholic Committee for Refugees at 265 West 14th Street.

In 1968, the NCWC was reorganized and replaced by the United States Catholic Conference and the National Council of Catholic Bishops. The USCC was the secular arm of the two organizations, headed by John I. McCarthy. The name of its Department of Immigration was changed to Migration and Refugee Services. The goals of the department were to aid immigrants and refugees of all nationalities, in particular foreign priests, to resettle in the United States and to advocate and put forward immigration legislation. In 2001, the USCC and the NCCB were combined to form the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB).

International Catholic Office for Refugee Affairs

The International Catholic Office for Refugee Affairs (ICO) was established on January 1, 1939 at an international conference meeting at Evian, France to address the refugee situation being created by Nazi German's racial and political policies. Those attending the meeting voted to create the ICO. The new agency's headquarters were in Utrecht, and the executive director was Dr. J.I.J.M. Schmutzer, a prominent Dutch Catholic layman. The Utrecht office established a branch office in New York City, under the direction of another layman, Dr. Frederick W. Hess. In the spring of 1940, the Nazis invaded the Netherlands and imprisoned Dr. Schmutzer. The Utrecht office was reduced to a mail office, helping people to make contact with friends and relatives behind enemy lines, and the New York office took over the bulk of the work. On May 1, 1941, Dr. Hess entered the U.S. armed forces and the ICO ceased to exist.

Catholic Committee for Refugees

The Catholic Committee for Refugees was organized at the annual meeting of the National Catholic Welfare Conference in 1963 under the name Committee for Catholic Refugees from Germany as a response to Nazi repression. The first Episcopal Chairman was the Archbishop of New Orleans, Reverend Joseph F. Rummel, the first director of the committee, Reverend Joseph D. Ostermann. The first office for the committee was at the Leo House, a German immigrant aid center in New York City. The committee was later charged with the operation of the Bishops' Orphan Program which secured adoptive homes in the United States for approximately 4000 orphaned in children from Europe and Asia. The committee also aided in the relocation of immigrant professionals and priests. Ostermann was succeeded as director by Reverend Emil N. Komora in 1940 when the named changed to the Catholic Committee for Refugees. In 1965, the committee was subsumed into the National Catholic Welfare Conference, Department of Immigration.

War Relief Services (later Catholic Relief Services)

Shortly after the outbreak of World War II, at the annual meeting of the American Catholic hierarchy, the bishops of the United States organized the War Emergency and Relief Committee to assist war victims in Poland and other devastated regions. In early 1943 the administrative board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference (NCWC) launched the War Relief Services, a comprehensive war relief program, headquartered in New York City. During the remainder of World War II and its immediate aftermath, the War Relief Services and cooperating indigenous agencies brought relief and welfare services to war torn countries in Europe and Asia. The agency was headed by Monsignor Bryan J. McEntegart, then Monsignor Patrick A. O'Boyle, and in 1947 by Monsignor Edward E. Swanstrom.

In 1945, the War Relief Services joined with other Catholic social service agencies and ethnic organization to form the National Catholic Resettlement Council (NCRC), whose task was the elaboration of a national plan for the resettlement of displaced persons in the United States, to be implemented by Diocesan Immigration Councils. The NCRC was instrumental in the orientation and resettlement of Hungarian and Cuban refugees.

In 1955, the War Relief Services changed its name to the Catholic Relief Services. Additional administrators in the War Relief Services were Aloysius J. Wycislo, John f. McCarthy, James J. Norris, and Edmund E. Cummings. The organization was subsumed by the the NCWC in the 1970s.

Scope and Contents note

This collection contains the records of four agencies formed or affiliated with the United States Catholic Conference, Migration and Refugees Services (USCC): The New York Office of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, Department of Migration (later the USCC), the Catholic Committee on Refugees, the International Catholic Office for Refugees, and the War Relief Services (later the Catholic Relief Services). Often these organizations worked in tandem, for instance, the Catholic Relief Services would provide the paperwork and applications for the emigrants abroad, once in the United States, some services were taken over by the USCC. These materials are mostly made up of case records of emigrants to the United States, which these agencies helped aid in their migration. The immigrants include clergy, unaccompanied children (often orphans), and families. Most of the records date from World War II and the post-war era, therefore most of the records relate to the agencies' work in bringing either families out of Nazi-occupied Europe or displaced persons after the war.

The records are also made up of ship manifests related to migrants, especially Catholic migrants that USCC and the Catholic Relief Services were mandated to take care of; office files related to the organizations found in this collection; related materials of other aid agencies (both Catholic and non-Catholic); publications; correspondence; and photographs.

These materials are a rich source of information about the Catholics who immigrated to the United States in the first half of the twentieth century. The materials also demonstrate how agencies provided support to migrants and displaced persons both abroad and in the United States. They also demonstrate the role of the Catholic Church in the immigration and adaptation process.

Custodial History note

When the National Catholic Welfare Conference reorganized and folded agencies in 1965, the New York office controlled the papers of four predecessor agencies: the Port Office, the International Catholic Office for Refugee Affairs, the Catholic Committee for Refugees and Catholic Relief Services (earlier the War Relief Services). In September 1995, Mark D. Franken, Director of Refugee Operations (and the New York office) arranged for the transfer of these records from long-term storage in a warehouse in Queens, New York.

Processing Information note

In 1995, when the materials were accessioned by the Center for Migration Studies, much of the material arrived dirty and in poor condition. Materials in series III are particularly fragile. Conservation measures were employed, but budgetary constraints prevented further measures of conservation.

In 2013, this collection was entered into the Archivists' Toolkit in compliance with DACS and folder descriptions were simplified from the original print finding aid. (The original finding aid is available in print upon request). Folder titles in the container list online may vary from the the physical folder titles.

Collection Inventory

1 Series I: Refugees Resettled 1958-1975

Arrangement note

Materials in this collection are arranged in two parts, arranged alphabetically. The first part covers the years 1958-1975, the second 1953-1956.

Processing Information note

In 2013, original Series I and II were combined together.

Scope and Contents note

This series contains the records of the National Catholic Welfare Conference's New York Port Office in the resettlement of refugees. From 1953-1975, individuals who had reached places of temporary asylum (e.g., Austria for eastern Europeans) could go to a Catholic charitable agency (like the Saint Raphaels' Verein) and fill out an emigration application to verify their refugee status and apply for permanent resettlement. The paperwork consisted mostly of application forms, transcripts of interviews, and correspondence. These application forms were generated by the War Relief Services (later the Catholic Relief Services) and filled out by either the charitable agency or the emigrant. These applications contained often vital information about the prospective emigrant, including date of birth, birthplace, occupation, language skills, plans and final destinations, family data, where they were during the war, and other information. There is one application per family unit. Sometimes this applications would also include photographs of the applicant. Once the refugee had successfully emigrated into the United States (clearing customs, getting their visa, and other activities), their paperwork was filed as complete with the New York Port Office. The New York port office relinquished responsibility once their immigration was complete to local resettlement agencies.

Series II: Displaced Persons, Ships and Planes

2 Series II: Displaced Persons, Ships and Planes 1940-1957*Scope and Contents note

This series contains records of the National Catholic Welfare Conference's New York Port Office, directly dealing with displaced persons immediately after disembarking ships and planes, from 1940-1957. This series contains manifests, handwritten notes, correspondence, lists, case records, emigration applications, office files, and other materials dealing with the immigration of refugees from Europe.

Arrangement note

Arranged in four subseries:

Subseries A: Ship Manifests Subseries B: Case Records by Ships Subseries C: Case Records in Alphabetical Order Subseries D: Files from the New York Port Office

1 Subseries A: Ship Manifests 1942-1957*Arrangement note

This subseries is in chronological order by the date on which the ship docked at its arrival port, except for files 2208 to 2236, which are in chronological order by the date on which the ship left Bremerhaven.

Scope and Contents note

Subseries A consists mostly of ship manifests. When a ship docks in the United States, the captain files a legal document, called a manifest, listing freight and passengers to prevent smuggling and stowaways. A few of the manifests in this series were from British and Swedish ships used during World War II to exchange civilians caught behind enemy lines at the start of the war. The rest are manifests of U.S. troop transports the International Refugee Organization leased in order to carry Displaced Persons residing in Displaced Persons Camps in Germany and Austria from the port at Bremerhaven to the United States. The majority of the ships arrived at New York, a minority at Boston and at New Orleans. Each manifest is usually accompanied by material related to the distribution of refugees to other welfare organizations;

Subseries A: Ship Manifests

most ethnic groups had their own welfare agency that was mandated to take care of a certain set of refugees. The National Catholic Welfare Conference was mandated to take care of Catholic refugees.

2 Subseries B: Case Records by Ships 1948-1952*Arrangement note

Subseries B: Case Records by Ships

This subseries is arranged in chronological order by the name of the ship and the date of its docking at its arrival port.

Scope and Contents note

Subseries B consists of case records, similar in nature to the case records found in Series I. These records are organized by ship, as opposed to family name. Some cases are grouped together in alphabetical order; others have separate folders. There is a gap in the records from November 15, 1949, and February 15, 1950.

Series III: Catholic Committee on Refugees, Children

3 Series III: Catholic Committee on Refugees, Children 1948-1963*Scope and Contents note

This series contains records created by the Catholic Committee on Refugees (CCR), these records the adoption of children from countries outside the United States. The United States Catholic Conference, Migration and Refugee Services did not handle international adoptions by itself, instead it publicized the availability for adoption of children from outside the United States. People usually responded to the public relations campaign via letter and CCR then sent the prospective parents forms to fill out. Sometimes, the prospective parents heard about the availability of children from another sources, such as the Rev. Luigi Donozan, C.S., with the National Catholic Resettlement Council, and in that case filled out and returned another sort of form. If the parents completed the form, CCR forwarded the form to the adoption agency approved by both the Catholic Church and the state for the community in which the prospective parents lived. Sometimes CCR received correspondence indicating the prospective parents were no longer under consideration. This happened for various reasons: the parents were expecting a baby, another source had supplied a child, or the parents did not meet some standard applied by the agency, the state, or the Church. The files came to CMS in manila folders in file cabinets, with code numbers rather than labels.

Arrangement note

Arranged in three series:

Subseries A: Agency Correspondence

Subseries B: Client Correspondence

Subseries C: Case Records

1 Subseries A: Agency Correspondence 1948-1963*Arrangement note

They are arranged alphabetically by state, then by city within the state.

Subseries A: Agency Correspondence*Scope and Contents note

Subseries A consists of the correspondence between CCR and adoption agencies. These came to CMS in file folders with code rather than with straightforward labels, but the significant part of the code was easily broken. The files reflect the original order. The cities reflect dioceses and archdioceses. Some dioceses and archdiocese had centralized Catholic charities; Brooklyn, for example, has seven folders. Other had decentralized Catholic charities and referred material coming from CCR to appropriate district office; Hartford, Connecticut, for example, has its files subdivided according to the towns in which its district offices were located. In all cases, the files consist of correspondence and copies of completed forms.

2 Subseries B: Client Correspondence 1948-1963*Scope and Contents note

Subseries B consists of correspondence from people interested in adopting children from outside the United States. Each client was assigned a case number and placed in a folder specifically for that case. As a result, many folders had no more than one piece of paper in them. It was impossible to break the code and perhaps unnecessary; the code reflected at least partly the order in which the correspondence arrived. Accordingly, the correspondence was grouped into folders in numerical order.

Arrangement note

Maintained original order.

Scope and Contents note

This series contains materials of the United States Catholic Conference, Migration and Refugee Services during the 1970s. This series contains case files, correspondence, and other office files. Most of these files deal with Catholic refugees from Iraq, Uganda, and Vietnam. This series came to CMS as one transfile drawer labeled "Ugandan expellees." The name was changed because when the drawer was opened it was clear that two other countries, Iraq and Vietnam, also had files.

5 Series V: International Catholic Office for Refugee Affairs 1939-1941*Scope and Contents note

This series contains records of the International Catholic Office for Refugee Affairs, mostly related to their work placing Catholic refugees with jobs in the United States after they were removed from their jobs in Nazi Germany and their work with other organizations.

1 Subseries A: Case Records 1939-1941

Subseries A: Case Records*Scope and Contents note

Subseries A contains case records. The cases involve individuals who were forced to leave Nazi Germany. There were two common reasons for such exile. One was that the individual was a non-Aryan occupying a position that had become restricted to Aryans, such as teaching at a university. The other was that the person was working for a Catholic agency put out of business when the Nazis state expanded to that agency's field; when the Nazis put all education under their supervision, many Catholic schools ceased to operate. In either case, the person (or, in the case of some schools, the group of nuns) needed new work outside Germany. These people applied for assistance to the International Catholic Office for Refugee Affairs, which put them in touch with the Committee for Catholic Refugees or Catholic Committee for Refugees, which took their resumes and wrote them letters of recommendation in an effort to place them. Some of these people received financial aid so that they could travel to the United States and establish themselves there.

Europe. Most cases involve secular priests of the Latin rite, but one can also find members of religious orders, women religious, those who were not ordained and not in orders, and priests of the Oriental rites with their spouses and children. Originally, each case was kept in its own manila folder, labeled with the name of the person or family involved, and kept in the order in which the cases came to agency attention. This order has been preserved.

7 Series VII: Office Files 1921-1967*Scope and Contents note

These records were generated by distinct agencies, either the National Catholic Welfare Conference/ United States Catholic Conference Port Office, Catholic Committee on Refugees or the War Relief Services/Catholic Relief Services. However, the records had been mixed when placed in storage and it was impossible to determine which of these agencies had generated them. Some files document the internal workings of the offices, with material on bookkeeping or personnel policies. (There are no personnel files.) Others contain material pertinent to the agencies' missions. This series also contains materials related to these agencies' work with other immigrant aid agencies, annual reports, correspondence, immigration legislation, and other materials.
