Biographical/Historical note

Our Lady of Pompei, currently located at 25 Carmine Street in Greenwich Village, was founded as a small chapel at 113 Waverly Place for the New York Branch of the Saint Raphael Society for the Protection of Italian Immigrants by Father Pietro Bandini. The first mass was said on May 8, 1892 and in 1895, Archbishop Michael Augustine Corrigan dedicated the first parish church at 214 Sullivan Street, which was originally erected in 1810 for an African-American Baptist congregation and later home to the Bethel Methodist Colored Church. In 1895, Bandini was replaced by Francesco Zaboglio. In 1896, a gas explosion killed two men who worked at the parish and the Saint Raphael Society, injured the pastor, and damaged the building. This event, and the rising Italian population in the area to almost 15,000, Our Lady of Pompei transferred to a larger building at 210-224 Bleecker Street in 1899. The building was a Greek Revival building which had been erected in 1836 for the third Universalist Church and had since 1883 been occupied by the African-American Roman Catholic Congregation of Saint Benedict the Moor. After the church was acquired Zaboglio, because of ill health, returned to Italy and was replaced by Dather Antonio Demo, who remained at the church was thirty-five years.

By 1917, the congregation had grown to over 20,000. Pompei stayed at this address until 1927, when the extension of Sixth Avenue forced another move. The trustees purchased a block of lots between Carmine, Bleecker, and Leroy Streets, and erected a complete parish plant. The rectory and church opened in 1928, the school in 1930, and the convent in the 1950s. The building was part of a historic district designation in 2010.

In 1933, Demo was called to Rome and during his absence, Reverend John Marchegiani acted as pastor and later procurator. Demo died in 1936. In 1937-1938, Marchegiani was called to Rome and succeeded by Ugo Cavicchi. During his tenure, Cavicchi achieved progress with the parochial school, proceeded with the decoration of church, and introduced the St. Vincent de Paul Society to help the poor and provided adult American citizenship classes for hundreds. In 1946, he was replaced with Joseph Bernardi, who served until 1952. From 1952-1964, Father Mario Albanesi was pastorm who organized the Fathers Club which gave scholarships to the parochial students and purchased houses on Carmine and Leroy Streets for further expansion. From 1964-1967, Anthony Del Bacon was pastor then replaced by Guido Caverzan (1967-1970), James Abbarno (1970-1975), Edward Marino (1975-1980), Charles Zanoni (1980-1989), Tarcisius Bagatin (1989-1993), Ralph Bove (1993-?), and John Massari.

Scope and Contents note

This collection contains the records of the Church of Our Lady of Pompei, located at 25 Carmine Street. The collection spans from the 1890s to the 1980s, the bulk of which come from 1892 to 1935. The collection sheds light on the life of the parish and the activities of one of its pastors, Antonio Demo, who administered the church from 1900 to 1932. Father Demo preserved actively many letters, papers, and other documents during his tenure at the church and up until his death. The collection contains correspondence, registers, vital records of the church's members, annual reports and publications of the church, financial records, clippings, and a significant amount of material related to the building and fundraising of the present day church. The collection is rich in data about the Italian Catholic population in the Greenwich Village area, containing a significant amount of information about members and their activities in the church in the early 20th century. The collection demonstrates the wide range of activities and services provided to its members, including educational services, welfare services, parish societies, and other activities. The records also show how the church functioned and raised money for its services and community. These records not only reflect the parish, but the changing landscape of Greenwich Village.

Series I: CorrespondenceCollection Inventory*Series I: Correspondence 1891-1938*Scope and Contents note

This series contains correspondence, the bulk of which is correspondence to and from Father Antonio Demo, the pastor of the church from 1901 until his death in 1936. Demo's correspondence contains letters ranging from letters to and from priests to casual notes from friends. Most of it is in Italian and originates in Italy. Incoming and outgoing letters of each letter is placed next to each other, with the English letters filed first. Other correspondence is with Domenico Foligno who resided in Italy and left his property in New Jersey in the care of Demo and correspondence with John Perozzo, a funeral director in the vicinity of the church. Demo also corresponded on behalf of Italian immigrant family assisted by charitable organizations and adolescent placed in reformatory institutions. The letters concern his religious and social service activities, his vision for a greater church Pompei, and his lifetime interest for the welfare of the Italian immigrants.

Other correspondence in this series relates to Reverend Zaboglio, Demo's predecessor, which contain letters related to rent paid, the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, and letters by a New York company regarding an account against the St. Raphael's House contracted by Friar Bandini, letters from Bartolo Longo, founder of Our Lady of Pompei, Italy. There is a significant amount of correspondence with the Chancery Office of New York, consisting mostly of directives from the Archbishop of New York.

The second subseries deals with the building and funding of the new church, which was built in part due to the extension of Sixth Avenue and the demolition of the former church. This material includes fundraising materials, correspondence, annual reports, building reports.

Arrangement note

Subseries I: Parish Records

This series is arranged into two subseries:

Subseries I: Parish Records

Subseries II: New Church Records

Subseries I: Parish Records 1898-1925

Scope and Contents note

The records include four handwritten volumes, containing the inchoate records of the first nine meetings of the Board of Trustees of Our Lady of Pompei, Zaboglio presiding. They are dated from January 20, 1898 to December 1, 1898 and were held in order to generate funds from the Italian community of Greenwich Village to buy the local church of St. Benedict. Continuing with the minutes of the Board of Trustees, there are fourteen other meetings, the last on April 26, 1928. Included with the minutes of meetings are records about church fairs, financial statements, resolutions, and statements concerning the purchase of several pieces of property by the church. The other three volumes deal with lists of contributors and statements of rental income from property owned by the church.

The records also include several invoices for work done to the church in 1895, 1897, and 1899; leases, agreements, and indentures relative to property rented and property owned by the church, correspondence to and from Zaboglio and Demo regarding real estate transactions. The correspondence continues with letters from several division in the Department of Housing of New York City and correspondence with the Diocesan Council of the Archdiocese of New York. The material includes the records of the erection of the new parish house, 1906-1907; the records relative to the Asilo-Scalabrini and rental property owned by the church. Finally, there are records related to insurance policies, the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin for Homeless Children, the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, and the New York Saving Bank. These companies held bonds and mortgages made by the church.

The material consists of the records relative to the extension of Sixth Avenue, Manhattan; the parish census taken in 1926 and 1927; records dealing with the purchase of property in the Greenwich Village area, and the building of the new church. Included are records about the establishment of a Builder's Society to help finance the erection of the church, and the Testimonial Dinner tendered to Demo, where the campaign for funds was launched. Also included is the correspondence with Charles Zerbarini, Attorney at Law for the church; reports from the law offices of Truman H. Baldwin and Sons, retained by the church to obtain the most compensation for the church's property expropriated by the City of New York. November 9, 1925 was the date fixed by the Board of Estimate of New York City as the date upon which title would vest in the City of all premises being acquired from Laight Street to Carmine Street, and additional lands between West Houston and Bleecker Street, including the entire premises of the Church of Our Lady of Pompei. Finally there is correspondence with M.D. Del Gaudio, architect of the church; architectural drawings and specifications; agreements with builders; records of mortgage payments; invoices and annual financial reports from 1901 to 1937.

Series X: Marriage Records 1893-1933Scope and Contents note

Includes thirty-six volumes of registers of marriage announcements, from 1893 to 1933; transcripts of certificate and records of marriages performed at the Church of Our Lady of Pompei and reported to the Health Department of New York City; and civil and religious documents, mostly from Italy informing the church authorities that the person about to be married is free from every canonical and civil impediment. These materials contain vital information about the people included in the registers, including information regarding their occupation, their place of origin, and other information. Also included are marriage certificates, marriage licenses from New York State, and records concerning dispensation of marriages. Finally, there are letters and handwritten notes by Demo concerning families with mental health problems as well as pamphlets and booklets.
