Language of Materials note	Materials in CMS.110 are in English, with some items in the the Publications, Archives and Miscellaneous Series in Italian.
Abstract	CMS.110 is an artificial collection of all the microfilm that came into the possession of the Center for Migration Studies between 1964 and 2016. Included in the collection are microfilm copies of dissertations and theses, newspapers and other publications, and microfilmed copies of some CMS' archival collections.

Preferred Citation note

Center for Migration Studies of New York Microform Collection (CMS.110), Box number, Reel number.

Scope and Contents note

When the Center for Migration Studies was founded in 1964, microfilm was considered the state-of-the-art method of conserving crumbling newspaper, a back-up to paper materials, and a way to share collections. CMS therefore began purchasing microfilm, accepting donations of microfilmed dissertations, participating in projects to microfilm rare ethnic newspapers, and creating microfilm to back up or to supplement its own archives. As digital technology became more important CMS ceased collecting microfilm; its last reel dates from 2002.

The collection is strongest in Italian and Italian-American materials, but the dissertations include studies on inter-Americas labor migration, southeast Asian refugee migration to the United States, and the migration situations in a few particular locales.

The collection has gone through several labeling processes. In the case of the newspaper microfilm in Series II, the microfilm team wrote labels in hand that were then standardized into printed labels. In the case of the microfilm from Italian and Vatican archives in Series III, the microfilm team numbered the microfilm, and the reels were renumbered to fit them into the present collection; researchers are advised to consult the finding aids to those collections as well as this finding aid.

Arrangement note

CMS.110 is arranged in four Series:

- I. Theses
 - II. Publications
 - III. Archives

Conditions Governing Access note

CMS.110 is available to researchers who can use a microform reader (supplied by CMS) by appointment.

Conditions Governing Use note

CMS.110 contains microfilm from other archives. It is incumbent upon researchers to obtain permission to quote materials in excess of "fair use" guidelines.

Immediate Source of Acquisition note

Materials in CMS.110 were purchased by or donated to the Center for Migration Studies. Newspapers in Series II came to CMS through participation in a project to locate and microfilm rare copies of ethnic newspapers.

Processing Information note

The Center for Migration Studies initially kept this microfilm in a case of specially designed metal file drawers, with each reel catalogued in the library holdings. In 2011 CMS moved from its founding home at 209 Flagg Place, Staten Island, New York, 10314, to 27 Carmine Street, New York, New York, 10014, and the microfilm was arranged in its present boxes, which were given temporary labels. In 2016, when CMS was installed at 307 East 60th Street, New York, New York, 10022, volunteer Mary T. Sanders typed the inventory for this collection and labelled each microfilm reel. Mary Brown added the subject headings and notes and applied the permanent box labels. A finding aid was created using DACS rules and Archivists' Toolkit software.
