Scope and Contents note

CMS.077 is an artificial collection gathered from the institutions founded and/or staffed by members of the Saint Charles Province of the Society of Saint Charles-Scalabrinians, a congregation of male religious who work with migrants and refugees. Since 1888, the Saint Charles Province has staffed institutions, mostly Italian Catholic parishes, Canada the eastern seaboard of the United States, the Caribbean and countries in the northeastern part of South America. In 1964 the Scalabrinians embarked on a new mission, the Center for Migration Studies. As part of that mission, Provincial Superior Silvano M. Tomasi, c.s., called on men of the province to contribute historical materials from their missions. Archivist Nicholas Falco gathered publications about the Scalabrini Fathers into CMS.077.

Two sorts of order were imposed on CMS.077. One was order by genre; the collection is organized into ephemeral publications, internal provincial documents, newspaper clippings, periodicals, photographs, and tape recordings. Intellectual control of the various genres depends on how heavily each genre is used. CMS lacks equipment to play tape recordings, and the news clippings have become brittle. The photographs are most frequently used, and clearly identified by subject.

The paper materials are organized by subject matter. The subject of "Chapter Meetings" may require some specialized vocabulary. "Chapter Meetings" refers to occasions when delegates from specific, usually provincial, groups of Scalabrinians got together. "Assemblies" refers to meetings with all the Scalabrinians in a specific province present. "Eastern Province" is often used to refer to the Saint Charles Province because of its geographical coverage. "Western Province" refers to the Saint John the Baptist Province, which covers the United States from Chicago to the Pacific, Western Canada, and Mexico. "General" meetings refer to those called by the administration of the entire Scalabrinian community; such meetings are usually attended by delegates, not by every member. All these meetings usually covered internal issues: priestly and religious formation, activities in the various Scalabrinian missions, planning for the recruitment and training of new vocations, the closure of missions where the Scalabrinians were no longer needed, and the expansion into new missions--"new missions" in the sense of being new places place to exercise the Scalabrinians' ministry to migrants, and also "new missions" in the sense of of ministry to new groups of migrants or new ways of ministering to migrants. These meeting reports are especially valuable because they cover the 1960s and 1970s, when the Scalabrinians were re-examining their ministry in the light of changing patterns of migration and also in the light of the Second Vatican Council.

Most of the rest of the collection covers Italian-American topics, in Italian and in English, but there are some publications in Spanish, Portuguese (having to do with Brazil) and Polish.

While few subjects are covered fully, CMS.077 provides a series of snapshots of life among the Scalabrini Fathers and in the immigrant communities they served during the first three quarters of the twentieth century.

Arrangement note
