2019
ANNUAL REPORT
CMS CENTER FOR MIGRATION STUDIES
BRINGING FACTS AND VALUES TO BEAR ON MIGRATION AND REFUGEE PROTECTION IN THE SERVICE TO THE COMMON GOOD
The Center for Migration Studies of New York (CMS) was founded in 1964 and incorporated in 1969 by the Congregation of the Missionaries of St. Charles, Scalabrinians, an international community of religious serving migrants and refugees of different cultures, religions and ethnicities in 32 countries. CMS is a think-tank and an educational institute, with a social mission rooted in its Catholic identity. It seeks to foster understanding between immigrants and receiving communities, and to promote public policies that safeguard the dignity and rights of migrants, refugees, and newcomers.

Since 2012, CMS has gone through a period of renewal, growth and innovation. During this time, it has also significantly expanded its reach and influence. As detailed in this report, CMS has embarked on significant new research initiatives, established a public policy journal, offered 87 events, created a widely-used website, and developed significant social media and multimedia footprints. It also strengthened its signature journal, the International Migration Review, and made its archive collections – which document US immigration history – more accessible to scholars, researchers, and the public. Not least, it strengthened its identity as a Catholic think-tank, and put itself in service to Catholic leaders and institutions throughout the world.

CMS has worked during this period against a backdrop of rising nationalism and multiple crises that have diminished the prospects of countless migrants and refugees. The current US administration has curtailed access to legal immigration, separated families, eviscerated the US asylum and refugee protection systems, and curtailed due process protections. Policymakers, immigrant-serving agencies, academics, the media, and the public increasingly recognize the harmful effects of these policies on families, communities, and the nation’s well-being and international standing. CMS studies and lifts up the contributions of migrants and refugees to their communities. It also documents the detrimental impact of nativist and restrictionist policies.

CMS is a lean, highly leveraged organization that produces extensive amounts of work through strategic partnerships and collaboration. It is committed – now more than ever – to bringing facts, values, and good policy ideas to the public dialogue on immigration.

ACHIEVEMENTS

Over the last eight years, CMS has substantially expanded its influence and reach. Among its achievements, it has:

- Created the Journal on Migration and Human Security (JMHS), a peer-reviewed public policy journal that serves as a highly effective instrument for developing and promoting evidence-based policy ideas;
- Established the Catholic Immigrant Integration Initiative, which seeks to strengthen and expand the work of diverse Catholic and other faith-based institutions on immigrant integration, defense and empowerment;
- Published the International Migration Review, which obtained the highest historic impact factor rating over a five-year period of any migration journal;
- Designed and launched the Migration Update, a weekly digest of news, reports, policy updates in English and Spanish, and reflections from pastoral workers and others who work with migrants;
- Offered 87 strategic events, ranging from multi-day, signature conferences, to half-day strategic gatherings on particular issues. CMS staff also presented in hundreds of additional events organized by other agencies;
- Created a widely-used, publicly accessible data tool that offers geographically precise data on the US undocumented population, US naturalization-eligible population, temporary protected status (TPS) recipients, Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) recipients, refugees, and immigrant essential workers;
- Received over 500,000 page views on its website, cmsny.org, in 2019; and
- Become a go-to resource for journalists.

"CMS, established over half a century ago, is today a national treasure. In a world on the move, it has become an indispensable resource for the reasoned understanding and analysis of complex human problems—from its publication of the International Migration Review (the leading journal in the field of international migration) and the Journal on Migration and Human Security, to rigorous research studies and policy reports, conferences, video interviews with experts, the CMSOnAir podcast, and its extraordinary archive of documents on the history of US immigration. To a world with the largest number of refugees since World War II, an asylum system in crisis, anti-immigrant policies at every turn and a rising tide of xenophobia, CMS brings a keen, authoritative and principled vision, working with scholars, policy-makers, faith-based groups, NGOs and the United Nations to affirm and safeguard the dignity and human rights of migrants."

OUR MISSION & VALUES

The Center for Migration Studies of New York (CMS) is a think tank and an educational institute devoted to the study of international migration, to the promotion of understanding between immigrants and receiving communities, and to public policies that safeguard the dignity and rights of migrants, refugees, and newcomers.

CMS’s work product consists of publications, events, policy-relevant research, expert support to faith-based institutions, and maintenance of a unique archive. To carry out this work, CMS has sought to create and foster a diverse community devoted to facts and values; that is, research, data, evidence-based policy ideas, person-centered public policies, and human dignity.

AFFILIATIONS

CMS is a member of the Scalabrini International Migration Network (SIMN), an international network of migrant shelters, service centers and other institutions along migrant corridors and in border and destination communities, and the Scalabrini Migration Study Centers (SMSC), a network of think-tanks on international migration in Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin American and North America.

"'You have to know in order to understand,' says Pope Francis in his Message for the 2020 World Day of Migrants and Refugees. 'Knowledge is a necessary step towards understanding others... When we talk about migrants and displaced persons, all too often we stop at statistics. But it is not about statistics, it is about real people!' Thank you to CMS for supplying the Church and everyone with reliable facts, deeper understanding and liberating ideas about vulnerable people on the move. So we can better accompany our brothers and sisters in defending their dignity and realizing their hopes. God bless all the work in CMS's impressive annual report!"

"The Center for Migration Studies plays an invaluable role in providing research and education on the experience of migrants around the world. Its leadership in studying how the Catholic Church and Catholic institutions have welcomed and responded to immigrants to the United States and how to transform those efforts for today’s immigrants is helping to strengthen both our Church and our society. The Catholic health ministry is proud and grateful to be CMS’s partner in this work."

HISTORY

CMS was established in 1964 and formally incorporated in 1969 by the Congregation of the Missionaries of St. Charles, Scalabrinians, a religious community dedicated to serving migrants and refugees throughout the world. In its early years, CMS initiated the International Migration Review, which has become the foremost social science journal on migration. It also published in excess of 120 books on migration-related topics, occasional papers, proceedings from its groundbreaking law and policy conference, and the magazines Migration World and Migration Today.

CMS also hosted conferences, meetings, briefings, symposia, and dialogues. In addition, it amassed an archive, consisting of immigration collections spanning the mid-19th century to the present. In recent years, CMS founded a peer-reviewed public policy publication, the Journal on Migration and Human Security. It has also hosted signature events, seminars, and strategic meetings with national and international partners on US and global migration issues.
The International Migration Review is an interdisciplinary, peer-reviewed journal created to encourage and facilitate the study of all aspects of international migration. Established in 1964, IMR is widely regarded as the leading scholarly journal in the field of international migration, ethnic group relations and refugee movements.

"CMS provides essential support to the migration community in the United States and internationally through its journals, conferences, research, data, and analysis. I have long used CMS’s resources in my own research and teaching. As a former policy maker, I can attest to CMS’s importance as a source of unending, unbiased information that offers insight into some of the most contentious issues facing the world. As a board member, I can attest to CMS’s exemplary management and the dedication of its staff."

AWARDS

“Indigenous Places and the Making of Undocumented Status in Mexico-US Migration” by Asad L. Asad and Jackie Hwang received the American Sociological Association’s (ASA’s) Louis Wirth Best Article Award in 2019.

“Negotiating Identity and Belonging through the Invisibility Bargain: Colombian Forced Migrants in Ecuador” by Jeffrey D. Pugh received the American Political Science Association’s Best Article Award in 2019.

“Tu Casa, Mi Casa: Naturalization and Belonging among Latino Immigrants” by Maria Abascal won the ASA’s Louis Wirth Best Article Award in 2018.

“Toxic Ties: The Reproduction of Legal Violence within Mixed-Status Intimate Partners, Relatives, and Friends” by Daisy Del Real received Honorable Mention for the ASA’s Aristide Zolberg Student Scholar Award in 2018.

In addition, CMS received the prestigious Frédéric Ozanam Award, conferred by St. John’s University, in honor of its commitment to migrants, refugees and newcomers in 2015.
Established in 2013, the Journal on Migration and Human Security (JMHS) is an online, peer-reviewed publication that features cutting-edge, evidence-based public policy papers. Its “human security” rubric is meant to evoke the widely shared goals of creating secure and sustaining conditions in migrant-sending communities and developing rights-respecting immigration policies that benefit sending and receiving communities and allow immigrants to lead productive, secure lives. Without sacrificing academic and analytical rigor, JMHS papers take a human-centered approach to migration scholarship, with a focus on vulnerable and marginalized persons. JMHS and IMR were two of the eight journals featured in the International Organization for Migration’s World Migration Report 2020.

RESEARCH

Since 2012, CMS has published and produced pioneering, policy-relevant research on international migration, refugee protection and immigrant integration. Its major research reports include:

- Communities in Crisis: Interior Removals and Their Human Consequences (in collaboration with Kino Border Initiative and Office of Justice and Ecology of the Jesuit Conference) by Donald Kerwin, Daniela Alulema, and Mike Nicholson (2018)
- The DACA Era and the Continuous Legalization Work of the US Immigrant-Serving Community by Donald Kerwin, Roberto Suro, Tess Thorman and Daniela Alulema (2017)
- Point of No Return: The Fear and Criminalization of Central American Refugees by CMS and Cristosal (2017)
- Building Structures of Solidarity and Instruments of Justice: The Catholic Immigrant Integration Surveys by Donald Kerwin and Kyle Barron (2017)
- Statelessness in the United States: A Study to Estimate and Profile the US Stateless Population by Donald Kerwin, Daniela Alulema, Michael Nicholson, and Robert Warren (2020)
- The Effects of Immigration Enforcement on Faith-Based Organizations: An Analysis of the FEER Survey by Donald Kerwin and Mike Nicholson (2019)

“As a professional working in the field of forced migration I am always looking for fact-based data. I read CMS updates and reports to get that data and match it with my other readings, encounters with forced migrants, and the opinions of other professionals. CMS provides me with pieces of the migration puzzle that assist in my quest for compassion and right thinking in my daily endeavors to promote fair opportunities for refugees, asylum seekers, migrant workers and others on the move.”

DEMOCRATIZING DATA

In 2013, CMS began a process to develop and make available data on vulnerable immigrant populations in the United States. Its Democratizing Data initiative provides estimates on the size and characteristics of the US unauthorized and naturalization-eligible populations at national, state and sub-state levels based on Census Bureau data and an innovative methodology developed by Robert Warren, CMS’s Senior Visiting Fellow. This data has been broadly used by scholars, researchers, the press, government officials, policymakers, non-governmental organizations, students, and others. Between 2014-2019, CMS produced 23 reports based on its data including:

- Statelessness in the United States: Working toward a Methodology to Estimate, Profile and Reduce the US Stateless Population (2020)
- Putting Americans First: A Statistical Case for Encouraging Rather than Impeding and Devaluing US Citizenship (2019)
- DACA and the Supreme Court: How We Got to This Point, a Statistical Profile of Who Is Affected, and What the Future May Hold for DACA Beneficiaries (2019)
- US Undocumented Population Continued to Fall from 2016 to 2017 and Visa Overstays Significantly Exceeded Illegal Crossings for the Seventh Consecutive Year (2019)
- The Estimated Undocumented Population is 11 Million. How Do We Know? (2015)

"CMS is a leader in providing timely and data-driven information on critical issues relating to international migration. More than ever before, the work of CMS has become so important in bringing researchers, policymakers, and NGOs together to tackle wide-ranging challenges facing immigrant communities."

ARCHIVES

The CMS Archive consists of more than 100 collections that document the immigrant experience in North America from the mid-19th to the 21st century. Its collections include:

- The records and files of agencies that assisted immigrants entering the United States at Ellis Island;
- The manifests of ships that brought migrants to Ellis Island and case files of those processed;
- Papers of individual immigrants who rose to prominence in the United States through the arts, business, entertainment, labor organizing, the law, politics, and service to their communities;
- The records of numerous Catholic, Italian American and other immigrant service, advocacy and community institutions;
- The voluminous records of the National Catholic Welfare Conference's Bureau of Immigration through 1975;
- More than 5,000 photographs of the immigrant experience, including photos of the orphaned offspring of American servicemen and Korean and Japanese women;
- Correspondence between Catholic leaders strategizing over possible responses to anti-Catholic bigotry and nativism in the early 20th century; and
- The largest surviving collection of material — including photographs — related to displaced persons in transit through New York City after World War II.

“...I have been fortunate enough to conduct research at the Center for Migration Studies since 2007 when I began work on my dissertation. Since then I have returned regularly to supplement that research to produce a book manuscript: Whom We Shall Welcome, Italian Americans and Immigration Reform, 1945-1965, (Fordham University Press, 2019). These projects speak to the treasure trove of research materials CMS houses on Italian American and Catholic organizations and individuals. They also testify to the continuing relevance of CMS’ collections to both academics and contemporary policymakers. I am beyond grateful to CMS for keeping these materials for posterity; and for keeping records open to public research.”

Danielle Battisti, Ph.D.
Associate Professor of History

In 2019, the CMS Archive responded to more than 100 requests from scholars, individuals with genealogy inquiries, and attorneys seeking to document arrivals of displaced persons.

His Eminence Cardinal Joseph W. Tobin

In 2017, CMSOnAir featured a conversation with the co-facilitators leading the development of the Global Compact on Migration – Ambassador Juan Jose Gómez Camacho, Permanent Representative of Mexico to the United Nations and Ambassador Jürg Lauber, Permanent Representative of Switzerland to the United Nations.

CMS Migration Experts Series

The CMS Migration Experts Series features video interviews with academics, researchers and experts at the forefront of international migration scholarship and practice. It has featured Michael Doyle, Loren Landau, Thomas Gammeltoft-Hansen, Susan Martin, and many others.

Susan Martin discusses new models for international protection systems on CMS’s Migration Expert Series.
CMS has established itself as a credible and important resource for journalists. In 2019, CMS was mentioned 270 times by 189 unique outlets, including The New York Times, The Washington Post, Associated Press, National Public Radio (NPR), Telemundo, The Miami Herald, The Los Angeles Times, ABC News, The Atlantic, The Hill, Slate, PolitiFact, and many others. CMS has also been covered extensively by faith-based media outlets, including: America Magazine, Catholic News Service, Catholic Philly, Crux, National Catholic Reporter, The Catholic Sentinel, Sojourners, Our Sunday Visitor, The Tablet, and others. CMS has been mentioned by the media more than 1,250 times since 2012.

"From timeless theories to urgent policy debates, the Center for Migration Studies serves a vital service. As both a forum for scholarship and as a source of original research, the Center serves broad constituencies in the academy, government, advocacy, and service providers. During difficult times the Center is a beacon of social science working for social justice."

Since 2012, CMS has significantly increased its social media clout. As of December 2019, CMS counted over 19,000 followers on Facebook. CMS also has three Twitter accounts with an active following. After an extensive redesign, CMS launched its new website (www.cmsny.org) in 2016. CMS’s website has grown to include:

- 267 posts, including press releases, policy summaries, and dispatches;
- 671 publications, including data-driven reports, articles that appear in its two peer-reviewed journals, and timely essays from migration scholars;
- 87 events, which provide information about future events and host videos of past events;
- 134 archival items, which are finding aids to the contents of CMS’s collection of late 19th- and early 20th-century archival materials;
- 165 multimedia items, including CMS’s podcast CMSOnAir and CMS’s Migration Experts videos; and
- 3,125 media items, including PDFs of CMS reports and accompanying data tables, photos, and archival documents.

The website’s layout and its large volume of information have contributed to significantly increased visitors since 2016. In 2019, CMS’s website received over 598,000 page views, an increase of 56 percent over 2018. Similarly, the number of website users increased from 209,000 to 365,000 between 2018 and 2019, representing a 75 percent increase.

"CLINIC is deeply grateful for the close relationship we have with the Center for Migration Studies. As a former Executive Director of CLINIC, Donald Kerwin has a particular and necessary understanding of the lived experience of migrants and refugees who seek dignity and a home in the United States. He and his team provide consistent, compelling, authoritative and credible research on migration and refugee matters which is vital to understanding the complexities of this world and the richness that immigration brings to our country."

OUTREACH & EVENTS

CMS offers conferences, dialogues, symposia and seminars to examine international migration issues, to highlight cutting-edge scholarship and research, and to feature groundbreaking public policy analysis. CMS events have covered issues as diverse as the US and global refugee protection systems; lessons from the UN migration and development dialogue; border enforcement policies; access to justice and due process issues; the work of faith-based institutions in helping to integrate immigrants; statelessness; and whole of community responses to punitive immigration policies.

Participant in the 2018 Whole of Community Conference
In 2019, CMS hosted six events that included 100 speakers and over 750 registrants. Its staff also spoke in 23 events sponsored by other agencies. Between 2012 and 2018, CMS organized 81 events, which featured 830 speakers and had 9,930 registrants. In addition, its staff participated in 115 external events. Several CMS events have been filmed. As of December 2019, CMS’s Youtube channel has had over 19,000 views.
GLOBAL IMPACT

CMS enjoys consultative status at the United Nations. It collaborates with policymakers on international, regional, national, and local levels. CMS assumed a leadership role – with SIMN – in advocating on the Global Compacts on Migration and Refugees. It has also authored reports and blogs on refugee and large-scale migrant populations.

Since 2016, CMS has worked closely with its fellow Scalabrini study centers, particularly the Scalabrini Institute for Human Mobility in Africa (SIHMA) in South Africa and the Scalabrini Migration Center (SMC) in the Philippines. In 2019, CMS collaborated with the International Catholic Migration Commission (ICMC), which organized a project on the future of work that featured an “integrative” paper on the future of work and international migration by CMS and three research projects, undertaken by SIHMA and SMC. CMS, SMC and SIHMA presented these papers in a convening co-organized by ICMC in Bangkok entitled: “Putting People at the Centre: Meeting of ICMC Asia-Oceania Working Group and High Level Regional Conference on ‘Future of Work.’”

In addition, CMS, SIHMA and SMC contributed papers to JMHS on implementation of different aspects of the Global Compact on Refugees and the Global Compact on Safe, Orderly, and Regular Migration.

"On behalf of the International Catholic Migration Commission (ICMC), I convey my deep respect and congratulations to the Center for Migration Studies for serving as a beacon of light as you research the crucial issues and deeply-felt experiences of migrants, refugees, internally displaced people throughout the world. At a time when people on the move are mistreated and rejected, perhaps more than ever, by our "throwaway culture," as Pope Francis often reminds us, CMS defends the dignity and rights of these brothers and sisters in the one family of God. CMS helps ICMC perform its mission of humanitarian assistance, protection, and advocacy to forcibly displaced people."

"The Center for Migration Studies’ evidence-based research relating to due process, immigration enforcement and detention has been critical to National Immigrant Justice Center’s (NIJC’s) work. Through its collaboration with CMS, NIJC has had the opportunity to learn, contribute, and strengthen its efforts to advance humane immigration reform. NIJC relies on CMS’ independent and scholarly research and publications to complement its advocacy in this ever-changing immigration landscape."

Mary Meg McCarthy
Executive Director
National Immigrant Justice Center
